User Guide

When the user starts the Poet Forum "Log in" window will appear as shown in the picture below. Since a new user does not have an account it is crucial to create a new one. In order to do that, the user must press the "Create account" button.

After Create Account window pops up, user has to fill all information fields targeted by red arrows. Then, to create an account user must press the save button which is targeted by the blue arrow.

Right after the previous action, "Log in" window will reappear where now user can enter the previously made account's username and password(Where the red arrows show below.). Then log in button must be pressed where the blue arrow shows to enter Poet forums main page.

After that, the main page is going to be displayed where user can post Poetry to the live feed. To do that first User must type a poetry to the post field which is shown on the picture below by targeting it with the red arrow. After writing the poem user must press to the post button to share it with other users, post button has been targeted by the blue arrow. The final interaction with the main page can be executed by selecting "my page" button, targeted by green arrow. My page button than displays user's personal page with all relevant user information.
